DECEMBER 2024 / COMMUNITY & CONNECTION

WELCOME FROM OUR CO-DIRECTORS

As the holidays approach, we are reminded of the profound importance of community and connection. While this time of year is filled with moments of joy and togetherness, it can also highlight feelings of loneliness and disconnection for many. At Hippocrates Wellness, we believe that true wellbeing comes from nurturing not only our bodies but also our relationships—with others, with ourselves, and with the world around us.

Community is a powerful force for healing and growth. When we connect with others, we share experiences, offer support, and create spaces for mutual understanding and care. These connections help us find strength in times of uncertainty and amplify our capacity for joy and gratitude. Even small acts of kindness or reaching out to a friend can create ripples of positive change.

From practices that deepen our relationships to tools for building emotional resilience, in this month's newsletter, you'll find insights to help you stay grounded and uplifted this season.

Here's to a December filled with togetherness!

Be well,

Anna Maria and Brian Clement

WHAT'S NEW AT HIPPOCRATES WELLNESS THIS MONTH?

ASK THE EXPERTS

Q. What would you say is the most likely cause of low energy in the afternoon? - Michael Humber, NYC

A. Blood sugar is the number one culprit. When people are on highly cooked carbohydrates, consuming fruit and/or juices, and even worse, condensed sugars like white, brown, honey, maple syrup, coconut sugar, date sugar, etc., they are unnaturally elevating sugar in the blood, manifesting synthetic energy. Then, when it drops, like stopping amphetamines, people lose energy and become lethargic. Eliminating all the above-mentioned “foods” and replacing them with organic, green plant food with the inclusion of blood sugar-regulating supplements like chlorella, blue and green algae, and many green plant supplements permits you to naturally balance so that there is consistent energy rather than sporadic highs and lows.

- Brian Clement, PH.D., L.N.

Q. How long do I take wheatgrass before I feel the benefits? - Erin, Sweden

A. Feeling the benefit of wheatgrass and obtaining the benefits is often different. On blood tests within 1-2 days, we see cells improving. This blood-like nutrient-rich elixir is so powerful that many people resist consumption. Start with drops, working your way up to two ounces minimally once a day, but ideally, two times per day.

THINK PIECE STRONGER TOGETHER

BY ANNA MARIA AND BRIAN CLEMENT, PH.D., L.N.

The Power of Connection

As the year winds down, the holiday season brings with it a natural focus on community and connection. At Hippocrates Wellness, we've always recognized the profound impact that relationships—both with others and with ourselves—have on overall wellbeing. True health doesn't exist in isolation; it flourishes within the energy of a supportive and nurturing community.

Wellness Rooted in Connection

Human beings are designed for connection. Studies show that strong social bonds can enhance mental resilience, boost immunity, and even extend longevity. These findings reflect what we see every day at Hippocrates: when people feel supported and part of a collective, their ability to heal and thrive increases exponentially.

Community doesn't just provide emotional strength; it also encourages accountability, motivation, and a shared sense of purpose. Whether it's through shared meals, group wellness activities, or heartfelt conversations, being surrounded by like-minded individuals creates a foundation for lasting wellness.

Emotional Wellbeing Through Belonging

Loneliness and isolation can significantly impact physical and emotional health, contributing to heightened stress, inflammation, and even chronic conditions. Connection, on the other hand, nurtures emotional wellbeing. Feeling seen, heard, and valued within a community fosters a sense of belonging and hope—key components for sustained mental clarity and resilience.

At Hippocrates, we view emotional health as essential to the healing process. Our programs integrate psychotherapy and practices that cultivate self-awareness, helping guests release emotional burdens and build meaningful relationships.

Building a Supportive Community

The Hippocrates Lifestyle is more than plant-based nutrition, progressive therapies, or fitness protocols—it's also about creating a space where people can come together, share experiences, and grow collectively. From the camaraderie of shared meals to the uplifting energy of group activities, we've seen how connection accelerates transformation.

By fostering a strong sense of community, we not only support individual wellness but also create ripple effects that extend beyond our campus. Together, we build a culture of care, compassion, and mutual growth—one that uplifts everyone it touches.

A Season of Togetherness

As we approach the close of the year, let this be a time to embrace connection. Whether with family, friends, or a wider community, nurturing relationships is one of the most powerful ways to enhance your overall wellbeing. Together, we can create a future where health is not just personal but shared—a collective journey toward vitality and harmony.

This season, let's celebrate the strength we find in each other and the lasting power of community—because together, we thrive.

LIVE THE HIPPOCRATES LIFESTYLE ANYWHERE, ANY TIME

3 WAYS TO FOSTER WELLNESS AND CONNECTION - HIPPOCRATES' PSYCHOTHERAPIST ANDY ROMAN

The holidays are a perfect time to nurture both your wellbeing and your connections. Here are three ways to embrace health and community this season:

- Prioritize Meaningful Relationships: Spend quality time with loved ones, whether through heartfelt conversations, shared meals, or simply being present. Building stronger connections boosts emotional resilience and fosters joy.
- Reconnect with Nature: Take daily walks, try gardening, or unplug from artificial distractions. Nature has a grounding effect, helping to reduce stress and improve mental clarity while reminding us of our place in the world.
- Engage in Acts of Kindness: Whether volunteering, helping a neighbor, or offering a kind word, acts of giving create a ripple of positivity. They enhance your emotional wellbeing and strengthen bonds within your community.

By focusing on relationships, nature, and kindness, you can create a season filled with connection, balance, and wellness. 🌿

CHEF KEN'S RECIPE OF THE MONTH

VEGAN HOLIDAY NOG

Ingredients:

- 2 cups of almonds
- 1 cup of pine nuts
- 3 medjool dates (or stevia for a sugar-free recipe)
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tbsp. vanilla

Method:

1. Make your two separate batches of nut milk.
2. Combine 2 cups of almonds with 2 cups of water, blend and strain through a nut bag.
3. Combine 1 cup of pine nuts with 1 cup water, blend and strain through a nut bag.
4. Combine both nut milks in a blender, add 3 medjool dates, 1/2 tsp. of cinnamon, 1/2 tsp. of nutmeg, and 1 tbsp. of vanilla.
5. Blend and serve! Note: This is a thicker and richer recipe than our regular nut milk.

LACHHA BOLTZ

MY BATTLE WITH ADVANCED OVARIAN CANCER

In 2021, I wasn't feeling so well and was shocked to discover that I had advanced Ovarian Cancer. The prognosis was not good; I could find only cases of fear and few successes. At this moment, I found a wonderful story about a mother and daughter; both had advanced stage four breast cancer and went to Hippocrates Wellness and healed themselves at different times. I said, "What could it hurt if I tried the same?" At that time, things looked grim for my family, but here we are, two years later, and I am cancer-free! I know the reason this happened. Other than taking my ovaries out, I refused to go through with the suggested mass hysterectomy followed up by nuclear medicine. All too often, I saw what happened to people who went down this road. My doctors are delighted, as much as I and my children are, that I am cancer-free. I know that it is due to the Hippocrates Lifestyle, consistent exercise, and living food that saved my life.
